

MERINO LEATHER

COMPANY PROFILE

WHO WE ARE

Merino Leather Company is one of the few integrated companies of the sector by owning and controlling the entire production process from premium rawhide to finished products, utilising its own tannery and production facilities with over 30 years experience.

WHO WE ARE

The tannery which has an annual capacity of 300.000 pieces is focused on fur-suede skins, double face lambskins and nappa for both Women and Men's wear.

Well-known by its trusting reputation and high quality, the company manufactures garments, leather, gloves, leather hats and accessories for itself and international brands in United States, Canada, Netherlands, Belgium, France and Germany.

Today, the company continues its operations in Istanbul and Serbia facilities.

A black and white photograph of a sewing machine on a workbench. The machine is a vintage-style industrial sewing machine with a large foot. To the left of the machine, there are several pieces of dark, textured material, likely sheepskin, and some small, dark, rectangular pieces of fabric or leather. A person's hands are visible, working with a piece of material near the machine. The overall scene suggests a craft or manufacturing process.

PRO DUC TION

Layers to love—handcrafted from velvety soft, insulating shearling sheepskin.

PRO DUC TION

Every single one of our sheepskin and leather coats has been handcrafted by a skilled team of master tanners, tailors, and artisans.

PRO DUC TION

Making a premium leather or sheepskin coat is a hands-on, niche skill that takes time—and requires years of apprenticeship, passion, and dedication.

PRODUCTION

TANNERY

Our hides hail from the world's top farms, in climes ranging from the idyllic mountains of northern Spain and the misty green fields of England to the fertile plains of Anatolia and our own rawskin warehouse from Serbia.

TANNERY

Tanning is a craft that needs to be done by human beings, by hand. It's a very involved process that can take upwards of twenty-four days to go from a raw pelt to a finished one, and each has its own character.

COATS & JACKETS

From elegant full-length coats to iconic bombers, capes, and vests, our timeless coats offer lightweight warmth year-round.
